The counsel for defendants urges that the Court on these facts is compelled to find that the plaintiff is illegitimate and not entitled to inherit from Mainae, his alleged father Kaiwa's sister, relying upon the following:

"The presumption of legitimacy may be rebutted by circumstances inducing a contrary presumption." 2 Selw. N. P. 758.

"Where the husband in the course of nature cannot have been the father of the wife's child, the child is by law a bastard, whether the furshand be within reach of access or not." 1h. All the remarks in Selwyn show that the evidence may show that the bushand could not by the laws of nature have been the father.

"A child born during lawful matrimony is presumed legitimate. This may be disproved by circumstances, as showing the husband to be under the age of puberty, or laboring under some other natural disability, or his continued absence or other circumstances repelling strongly the presumption of access." 2 C. J. Hill's notes 405. See I Phil. Ev. 158.

"As a general rule, the presumption (of legitimacy) may be resputted by evidence." Tyler

"As a general rule, the presumption (of leg-itimacy) may be rebutted by evidence." Tyler on ejectment p. 493, citing Morris vs. Davies 5 Cl. and Fin. and Reg. vs. Mansfield 41 C. L.

The doctrine however is clearly settled that although the birth of a child during wedlock raises a presumption that such child is legitimate, yet this presumption may be rebutted both by direct and presumptive evidence; and in arriving at a conclusion on the subject, the ary may not only take into their considerat jury may not only take into their consideration proofs tending to show the physical impossi-hility of the child born in wedlock being leg-itimate, but they may decide the question of paternity by attending to the relative situa-tions of the parties, their labits of life, the evidence of conduct and to any induction which reason suggests for determining upon the prob-abilities of thecase. "Ib. 561, citing 4 Term 356, 2 Str. 424, Co. Lit. 123 b."

356, 2 Str. 924, Co. Lit. 123 b."

"It is an irresistable inference from all the facts that the plainting is the son of Hopkins sen. As a matter of fact a half white child of native parents is a natural impossibility. The law allows such a finding of facts to be made on reasonable evidence, and if such fact is proved, it robuts the presumption of legitimacy."

vs. Davis na follows:
"First. That when husband and wife have fies those who are to decide that it did not take place." The full answer to the fourth ques-tion is as follows: "That in every case where a child is born in lawful wedlock, the husband not being sep-in lawful wedleck, the husband not being sep-arated from his wife by sentence of divorce, sexual intercourse is presumed to have taken place between the husband and wife, until that presumption is encountered by such evidence as proves to the satisfaction of those who are to decide the question that such sexual inter-course did not take place at any time when, by such intercourse, the husband could accor-ding to the law of nature, be the father of such child."

The House of Lords, in the Morris vs Davis The House of Lerds, in the Morris vs Davis case found as follows: I copy the head note: "Husband and wife, after living together for ten years, and having one child, agree to separate. They accordingly afterwards lived apart, but within such distance as afforded them opportunities of sexual intercourse, the husband not being impotent. "Held, that the presumption of law in favor husband not being impotent.

"Held, that the presumption of law in favor of the legitimacy of a child begotten and horn of the wife during the separation, may be rebutted, not only by evidence to show that the husband had not serual intercourse with her, but also by evidence of their conduct, such as that the wife was living in adultery, that she conceased the birth of the child from the husband and declared to him that she never had such child; that the husband disclaimed all knowledge of the child and acted, up to his such child; that the husband disclaimed all knowledge of the child and acted, up to bis death, as if no such child was in existence; and also, that the wife's paramour aided in concealing the child, reared and educated it as his own and left it all his property by will." In the case before me there was no attempt to show non-access of the husband. The evi-dence of an intimate acquisitance of the family is to the effect that during the period covered by a year or more previous to the birth of plaintiff, Kaiawa and his wife lived together up stairs in a house in which Hopkins senior up stairs in a house in which Hopkins senior lived.

Here, then, not only had the hushand and wife opportunities of access from which sexual intercourse is presumed to have taken place, but there is no evidence even tending to co-counter the presumption of such infercourse. For, the evidence of the acts of Hopkins sen, in relation to the child as well as the appearance of the child, do not tend to disprove the presumption of serual intercourse of the hushand and wife; they are even quite consistent with it. These facts to tend very strongly to show that Hopkins sen, had sexual intercourse with the mother, but it is the policy of the law not to encourage the admission of evidence of this character, and in order to protect the marriage relation, the presumption in favor of legitimacy must be sentained in a case like this, according to the third answer of the Judges, above cited from the Basshurs Percupaces, that "after proof of sexual intercourse (of the husband and wife) evidence will not be admitted, except to disprove the fact."

I can find no case at all approaching the view arged by defendant's counsel. The apparent mixture of blood in the plaintiff is a feature in this case which does not appear in any of the cases I have been able to find. But I do not think this is sufficient to rebut the presumption of legitimacy, the plaintiff having been born in lawful wedlock, while the hus-Here, then, not only had the husband and umption of legitimacy, the plaintiff having born in lawful wedlock, while the husseen born in lawful wedlock, while the husand and wife were living together and no approach made towards showing that sexual intercourse between husband and wife did not take place at any time whee, by such intercourse, the husband could, according to the aw of nature, be the father of such child.

To go beyond the adjudged cases would promote inquiries into domestic affairs which wouldbe subsersive of the sanchity of the marriage relation and create public scandal.

To summarize this point, I hold that notwithstanding the physical fact of the plaintiff aving an admixture of white and native blood
the fact that is also shown by uncontradicted widence that his mother and her husband were having actual intercourse with each other that I have always known, approved and con-sented to the within instrument and do hereby us far as my rights are concerned ratily and approve the within instrument, this 15th day of September, A. D. 1880.

In presence of H. L. Sheldon In presence of H. L. Sheldon: Linu's acknowledgement to the above was taken 23rd January, 1882.

It is claimed by plaintiff's counsel that this instrument being made by a married woman is void ob initio; that, it being void it cannot be revived by the husband after the death of the wife, for the property descended to her heirs on her death.

The defendant's counsel on the other hand contends that the instrument in question is not contends that the instrument in question is not void because it was executed by a married woman as her husband expressly ratified it. The law in force in respect to a married wo-man's control of her lands in 1854 when this instrument was made, was the same as at present:

"The wife shall be deemed for all civil purposes to be merged in her husband and civilly dead. She shall not without his consent, a have legal power to make contracts, or to alienate and dispose of prosperity."
Laws of 1846 p. 59 and Civil Code Section 1987.

Various Justices of this court have held that a deed of a married woman, her husband not joining or assenting thereto, is void. But the paper in this case is in the nature of a lease upon which the husband has endorsed his express consent and ratification.

I see nothing in the statute to indicate that the husband's ratification or consent must be contemporaneous with his wife's contract. The meaning is clear that she may make contracts and alienate or dispose of her property with her husband's consent.

The common law method by which a wife could alienate her land was by fine and recovery by matter of record in open court.

proved, it rebuts the presumption of registrously by matter of record in open court.

The leading case on this subject is Morris vs. Davis, 5 Clark J Finnelly 163, 369, (1836).

Lord Cottenham was Chancellor and the eminent jurists Lords Lyndhurst and Brougham, sat in the case.

It became necessary for their Lordships to review the Banbury Peerage case. In this last named case, certain questions were sent to the Judges of England, the answers to schick are summarized by Lord Lyndhurst in Morris vs. Davis as follows:

Decould alienate her land was by fine and recovery by matter of record in open court. Chancellor Kent in his Commentaries, 2nd Book p. 153, says. "The substitute of a deep for a conveyance by fine, has prevailed throughout the United States, as the more simple, cheap and convenient mode of convey-last throughout the United States, as the more simple, cheap and convenient mode of convey-last throughout the United States, as the more simple, cheap and convenient mode of convey-last throughout the United States, as the more simple, cheap and convenient mode of convey-last throughout the United States, as the more simple, cheap and convenient mode of convey-last throughout the United States, as the more simple, cheap and convenient mode of convey-last throughout the United States, as the more simple, cheap and convenient mode of convey-last throughout the United States, as the more simple, cheap and convenient mode of convey-last throughout the United States, as the more simple cheap and convenient mode of convey-last throughout the United States, as the more simple cheap and convenient mode of convey-last throughout the United States, as the more simple cheap and convenient mode of convey-last throughout the United States, as the more simple cheap and convenient mode of convey-last throughout the United States, as the more simple cheap and convenient mode of convey-last throughout the United States, as the more simple cheap and convenient mode of convey-last throughout the United States, as the more s protect her from imposition etc." There is some syideace that Luan the husband of Mainas sometimes received the rent during her lifetime but I find no receipt of such

"First. That when husband and wife have opportunities of access, the presumption of legitimacy may be rebuited by circumstances inducing a contrary presumption.

"Secondly. That non-access, or non-generating access, may be proved by means of such legal evidence as is admissable in every other case in which it is necessary to prove a physical fact.

"Thirdly. That after proof of sexual intercourse, evidence will not be admitted except to disprove the fact.

"Fourthly. That sexual intercourse is presumed, unless met by such evidence as satisfies these who are to decide that it idl not less than a decide that Luau the husband of Mainne sometimes received the red during the interior state.

Having found that the instrument under which defendants hold possession is not wild, I now consider its purport. It creates a high temption of the instrument and continuous contrary presumption of the contrary found that the instrument which defendants hold possession is not wild, I now consider its purport. It creates a high temption of the contrary from the properties of the contrary of the contrary for the contrary for the presumption of the contrary presumption of the contrary presumption.

But the instrume gives the party of the second part the pri-loge of renewing for another term of ten yes or "so long as he or his representatives in desire the same upon said conditions." This is claimed by the defendants' coun "to create a fee, determinable at the please of the second price of th This is compose by the defendants' counse, of the grantee, or a base fee. If a base fee was not created, the instrument is a lease, providing for extensions of terms of ten years,

each new term beginning by actual occupancy and holding over from the previous terms.
Defendants Counsel cited cases which are referred to in the obligion of the Court." Defendants Counsel cited cases which are re-ferred to in the opinion of the Court."

In 1 Washburn R. P. p. 62 we read, "th term determinable fee seems to be more gen term determitable fee seems to be more generic in its meaning, embracing all fees which are liable to be determined by some act or event expressed on their limitation to circum erribe their continance, or inferred by law as bounding their extent."

Plowden uses the following language: "Such perpetuity of an estate which may continue forever, though at the same time there is a contingency which, when it happens, will determine the estate, which contingency cannot properly be termed a condition, but a limitation, may be termed a fee-simple determinable."

iminiation, may be termed a fee-simple determinable."

Although in the instrument the word "heirs" twice occurs, in the demising clause and in the habendum clause, there is a clause that the premises shall at the expiration of the lease be restored to the said Mainae or her supresentalives with all the buildings and improvements, which would be inconsistent with the idea of creating a fee of any character in the land. It seems to me also that by the event or act which is to determine the catate in a base fee is meant something different than the mere election of the grantee or his wish to terminate the estate. I cannot reconcile the definitions above given with the language of the instrument before me. Looking at the whole instrument I am of the opinion that no estate in fee was intended by the parties, but a lease-hold estate.

Counsel for plaintiff contend that after the last April 1878, there was a tenancy at will between the parties and which would be terminated by the death of either party.

Taylor's Landlord and Tenant Sec. 333 says "a covenant to let the promises to the lessee at the expiration of the term, without mentioning any price for which they are to be let; or to renew, upon such terms as may be agreed on, in neither case amounts to a covenant for renewal, but is altogether void for uncertainty. Nor will a general covenant for renewal be construed to imply a perpetual renewal unless the words are expressly to that effect, the most a lessor is bound to give on such a covenant is, to renew for one term only. Covenants for continued renewals are not favored, as they tend to create a perpetuity." covenant is, to renew for one term only tovenants for continued renewals are not favored, as they tend to create a perpetuity."

In the opinion of Van Ness J. in Abed rs. Raddiff. 13 Johnson 290, where the leane contained a covenant "to let the lot" at the expiration of the term created, the judge said: "The word let is strictly applicable to a lease and not to a deed in fee; and a lease is for life or for years, or at will, and always for a least the than the interest of the lessor in the premises." The judge held that the covenant was totally void for uncertainty.

A late case W. Tramp. Co. of Buffalo vs. Lamsing, 40 N Y 1400 1872 is very instructive. The lease was for fifteen years with a clause, "with privilege of keeping and occupying said lots for such further time after the expiration of said term as said party of the second part abuff choose or cice, yielding and paying therefor the same rent cic."

This high court per Folger J. held that perri shall choose or cice, yielding and paying therefor the same rent etc."

This high court per Folger J. held that where before the expiration of the specified form the lessor dies the lessee is not entitled to a renewal or extension of the lense.

On page 505 the judge says, "and so it is said, that if one let lands for such a term as both parties shall please, this is but a lease at will; because what that term will be is utter, yet meertain. (Bacon's Ab Lease L. B.) That is, as I understand the proposition, that it is at the time of the lease utterly uncertain what term the parties will please and not that they may never please to fit upon a certain term. For the certainty of the continuance of the term ought to be nacertained, sither by the express limitation of the parties at the time collateral fact which may with equal certainty measure the continuance thereof otherwise it will be void."

respect that both parties to the lease were alive.

Being at liberty so to do, I adopt the principal of the N. Y. decision and hold that the lease under which the defendants hold, by its terms now creates a tenancy from year to year which by the notice to quit of the 3rd March 1882, terminated on the 31st March 1882 when the year expired.

As the plaintiff has shown that Mainae left a husband Luau surviving her, he or his heirs would be entitled to one undivided half of this estate, and therefore judgment must
